Titles purchased via the Hereditary Title feat are considered vulgar(at campaign start) or coincidental(at later creation). Titles can also be achieved via static means, in which case they don't take feat slots.

Note that more than 2 levels of Hereditary Title is silly for PCs, and even the second level may be silly; all levels are listed for completeness. (I'm considering having each feat level after the first double the available levels.) Greyed entries are not available to starting PCs, even silly ones.

"Unrealized" titles are generally one level cheaper; several of these are listed, due to the title varying.

Several of these titles are not hereditary.
